The halls of Garrett High School are so constructed that they join together to form one continuous walkway. We can walk unceasingly and never reach a true end. Maybe we will enter into a classroom, but upon leaving we will once again find ourselves in the endless halls.

In these halls we spend six of the best years of our lives. During this time we grow in knowledge and maturity by hard study and close contact with other classmates.

We find many things in the halls of GHS--drinking fountains, bulletin boards, book lockers and posters. Yet, these do not complete the hall fixtures. The hall needs people--students and teachers to make life around these halls the memory we will remember always.

The crest on this page and on the cover is a symbol of our years at Garrett High School. This emblem appears on a treasured memento, the school class ring. The 1961 Aeolian is also a token, a treasured memento of this year's activities at GHS.

AROUND THESE HALLS . . .

We Have Fun

Making sure they have the right change, Larry Warstler and DuWayne Hofferma count their money before paying for their dinner.

Visiting the concection stand in Room 18, Mr. Cleo Miller takes time out to down a cup of hot coffee.

In These Halls

Foot fashions follow female fads for fall. White keds were the rage this year for all well-dressed girls in GHS.

One of the lighter moments in the halls of GHS is captured on celluloid when Dave Helbert and Dick Burch try to lock Sandra Gnagy in her coat locker.

Whether talking with friends, getting books from their lockers, or going to the next class, students keep the halls busy with their many activities.

... We Live and Laugh ...

After all is quiet, Mr. Johnson and the other custodians prepare GHS for another day of education and fun.

Keeping the dairy industry in business, Garrett seniors drink their quota of milk at lunch.

With dreams of a glorious banquet on their minds, money-hungry juniors accept with willing hands the contributions of students at one of their record hops.

Joe Oberlin, Sherrill Terry, and Eric Bickel were among the "servants" who waited on Junior hosts and Senior guests.

... We Dine and Dream ...

A Southern Plantation was the setting of the Junior-Senior Banquet, "Southern Cotillion" held on April 30, 1960. Trees draped with Spanish moss complimented the murals, giving them a life-like appearance. A fountain bubbling with pink water and surrounded by wrought iron furniture was the main attraction of all the decorations. The stage was transformed into a colonial mansion complete with columns and steps. After dinner, Gary Sheldon and his band provided entertainment along with the song and dance routines of Note and Toe. After the banquet, the festivities continued with the annual "All Night Party" at the Elks Lodge and Gala Theater. The night was ended with breakfast at the Eagles.

... We Wish and Wonder ...

Only one left? Danny VanZile looks forebom as he discovers that other picnics have eaten all of the potato chips.

Hungry Juniors and Seniors crowd around a table loaded with every kind of food a teenager dreams of.

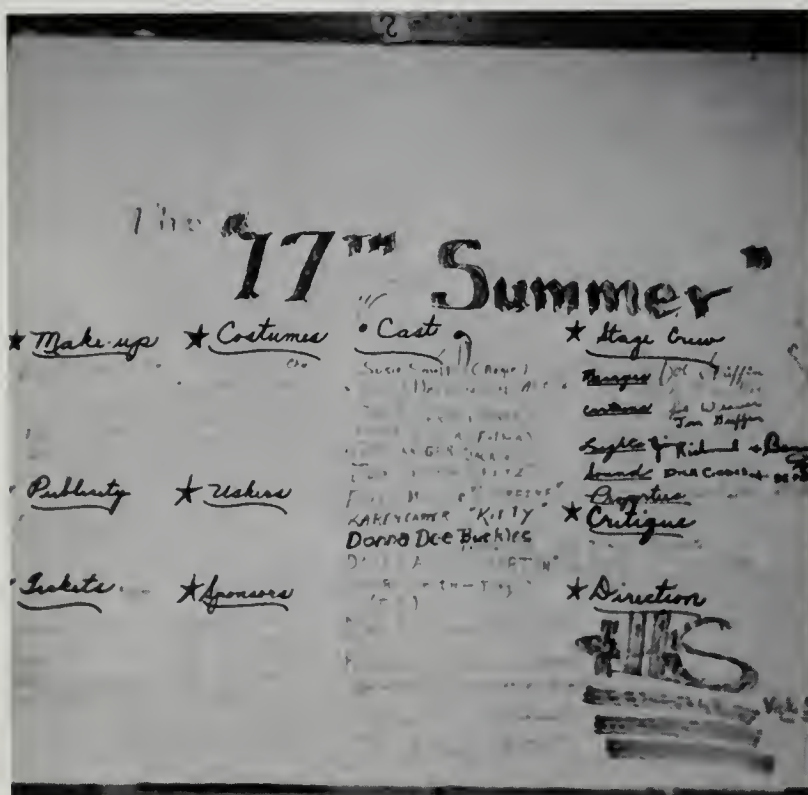

"You must be Martin," says Lorraine (Adele Miller) as she meets her blind date Martin Keefe (David Casey).

Greasepaint and powder are the bywords of a play. Here Grace Strobel powders the face of Gary Snider.

After the chairs are folded up and the sets torn down, all that remains is the autographed panel that is signed as part of the annual tradition of the play.

Differing from any other play the Senior Class has sponsored, the 1961 production was more on the serious side. SEVENTEENTH SUMMER was the sentimental story of a young girl and her first love. Angie, played by Susie Smith, portrayed a 17 year-old girl who meets Jack, played by Gary Kruger; falls in love with him and then meets trouble in the form of Jane Rady, played by Karen Keefer. Karen Carpen was cast as Angie's 11 year-old sister, and it was her job to keep the play from being too emotional. Mr. Hubert Stackhouse directed the play and Mr. Joel Plum took care of the make-up.

... We Strive

Losing her temper, Angie gives back the going away presents of her catty friends Margie and Jane.

Singing up a storm, this group of talented teachers gives the magazine sale that extra boost.

Showing his dexterity with the whistle, Fred Lowery entertained GHS'ers at the second assembly program.

and Study . . .

Donning her sharp chapeau, Meg Williams adds kindling to the fire of the magazine sale.

Any book from Mad to Music is available to ambitious students with sufficient capital at the Book Fair sponsored by the Maroon & Blue.

New enthusiasm was generated for the magazine sale this year when the halls were decorated with posters and a big thermometer was placed in the study hall telling the daily progress of the sale.

Part of the money from this magazine sale was used for assembly programs, that entertained the students this year. Fred Lowery, the noted whistler and Kenneth Goodman, an organist were two of the many personalities that appeared here.

Some people will do anything to get a picture and school photographer Joe Griffin proves it as he cunningly hides in a locker to snap some unfortunate's photo.

Although work is another name for the Aeolian, Dave Casey seems to have found a way to ease his burden with the "obliging" help of Donna Dee Buckles.

... We Practice

Susie Smith seems to be particularly interested in the pan of food that Bill Seigel is helping himself to at lunch time.

With a background of autumn leaves, pumpkins, and corn, John Flora and Kathy Buckles, along with the other guests, take advantage of the music and dance at the Hi-Y and Y-Teens Semi-formal.

The start of school, between classes, or at day's end, the boys' locker room is filled with the "many objects of girls' affection," all in a hurry to get to their final destination.

Vocal participation is added to the school by the senior girls who compose the Teenettes.

and Participate . . .

When the final bell rings and classes are finished, each student heads his own way, some to their bus, some to their home, and some to their work.

Student Council appropriated money for pencil and paper machines last year for students who don't have time to run over to the Ober Building, and Lynn Kizer seems to be one of these students.

Sharon James, Anita Hoke, Marcia Tharpe, Steve Fike, and Norman Best look over each other's report cards to see the "good" news.

Although appearing to be hard at work, Mr. Capin and Philip Sweeney discuss the pros and cons of a coin collection.

... For Our Own Betterment.

Mr. Jack Bateman explains one of the finer points of chemistry to junior, David Landy.

Industrious juniors prepare for another one of their numerous after-the-game extravaganzas held in the high school gym.

AROUND THESE HALLS . . .

We Gain Knowledge

Mrs. Fitch, public librarian, gives the senior composition class some instructions for using reference material at the public library.

Expressing ourselves better with words in our native English and also foreign tongues is the job of the language departments of GHS. Composition class, under Mrs. Mary Mellott, helps the student gain a better knowledge of written expression. The class also visited the public library to obtain first-hand information on using reference material.

Underclass English courses are divided into one semester of grammar and one of literature. The first semester, students study sentence structure and diagraming. Literature classes study the authors of America and the Old World. Shakespeare and other great English authors are the main sources of work for the sophomores while the juniors concentrate on such American authors as Poe and Emerson.

English and Foreign Languages shatter

Strange as it may seem, this is speech class, not home economics class. Patricia Vogel is giving a demonstration speech on "How to make a pizza."

Coline Brown seeks to increase her knowledge of literature by buying one of the 500 books on display in room 11 during the Book Fair.

Every student in second year Spanish is required to have a report on some phase of Spanish life every six weeks. Here Susan Hipskind presents her report on the country of Cuba.

many barriers of today's world

The ancient language gets a modern treatment from Mrs. Wilma Sisson as she teaches her students the fundamentals of Latin. The students acquire a rounded idea of this language as they study Latin stories and background material. Various speakers have appeared before the classes and have told the value of Latin in their business professions.

Students of Latin's modern counterpart, Spanish, are among the most learned pupils in GHS on the topic of South American affairs. Mr. Hubert Stackhouse teaches his students to make use of their living language as they strive to understand the traditions of our Latin-American neighbors.

In the grammatical department, students learn conjugation and word usage, plus the regular vocabulary. Spanish records are also available for the student who wishes to become more fluent in his conversational Spanish.

Greek noblemen, Michael Reese, Roger Stroman, and Michael Moody are served refreshments by Anita Hoke at one of the Latin parties.

Looking good enough to eat, Karen Wade's marshmallow castle, bedecked with frosted ice cream cones, and candles, presented an interesting variation to the history projects in junior history.

"That's my man, but he lost." Larry Lung gazes longingly at Richard Nixon's picture in Mr. Finchum's government class.

Cathy Barcus gazes on intently as Mr. Robert Harmon points out the Belgian Congo, a cause of recent world tensions.

Problems

To enrich the minds of students with a background of the past; to instill in them a knowledge of the present; to add to their hope in the future is the aim of the social studies department of G.H.S.

Starting with caveman days in world history and finally winding your way up to present-day economic structures is just part of the opportunity open to students.

Mr. Cameron Parks, history teacher, is one of the most noted Indian relic collectors in Indiana. Tom Baldwin, Cynthia Schaab, and Connie Kolbe admire some of his rare birdstones.

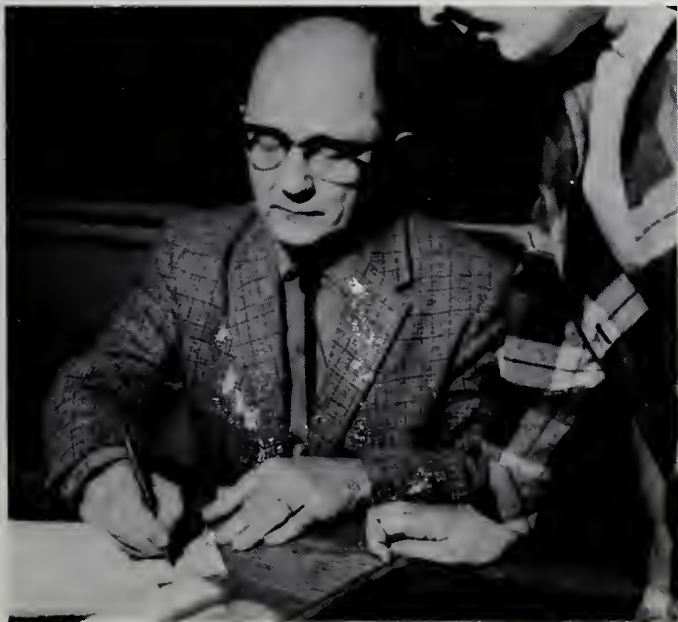

Speed is of the essence in Mr. Woodcox's class. Students learn how to multiply and divide rapidly by working problems on the board.

Fascinate Us . . .

Starting from elementary division all the way to spherical trigonometry, is the range of math at G.H.S. Seventh and eighth grades can gain a basic knowledge of the arithmetic fundamentals and then develop upon these in high school.

Getting some after school help from Mr. Flora, Suzanne Davis seeks to unveil the complicated mysteries of Algebra.

Ever hear of an endless curve? Well, Mr. Linder is letting Lynn Simon in on the secret of how that piece of paper has only one surface.

Figuring all the angles is the problem that Randy Oliver faces at present. Geometry presents many problems, and Randy is well on his way to conquering them.

Mike Kock and Don Baidinger made use of the geiger counter during an experiment on the inverse square law of electro-magnetic radiation.

Science Reacts to the Esther Warstler uses the new analytical balance, presented by Electric Motors.

Dick Murley and David Miller look over the new shipment of books from the traveling Science Library.

Science is taking a bigger and bigger lead in the academic life of GHS. An example of this is the advanced course in chemistry being offered this year.

Besides new courses, there are new ideas being introduced. Radio-activity has been added plus other studies of the atom.

Chemistry I students learn the basic concepts, and later expand upon them. The vocabulary, the fundamentals, and units of measurements are some of the ideas taught. In the later part of the year, chemical calculations, general behavior of solutions and processes of solubility are studied.

General science is taught in Jr. High, and they learn the basic ideas to build on in high school.

Apparently disturbed at the proceedings, Carol LaRue disapproves of Larry Warstler and Eugene Hathaway dissecting a clam.

Atomic Age.

Feeding time at the zoo. Several students used white mice for their Science Fair projects.

The measure of balance presents senior Jim Tharpe with an interesting problem in physics class.

fdsa jkl; jug, rug, mug, dug. You have to start somewhere and first year typing students find the simpler they start the better.

Business Basics Provide

The hunt-and-peck school of typists may be wondering what they missed by not enrolling in this class. This is just Miss Sarah Eldridge's way of making sure second-year typers don't peek at the keys.

Translating those little lines, dots and circles into words seems like a complicated job, but Miss Sarah Eldridge shows shorthanders where there's a will, there's a way.

Jackie Hollis seems to have all the essential items needed in order for her bookkeeping records to come out correct.

Useful Skills

The business curriculum at G.H.S. prepares students not only for a life in our world of economics, but also gives aid to future college students and housewives. For those who want to major in business, there are courses dealing with all forms of this activity. Future homemakers find bookkeeping an ideal subject for their budget making. College students find typing a necessity not to be without.

Automation crept into the school, and replaced the pencil in bookkeeping class. Mr. Robert Bratton teaches the fundamental ideas behind the use of the beloved adding machine.

Working intently on his shop project, Gerald Davis guides a piece of wood through the bandsaw.

Permeating the air with the smell of good things to eat, home economics classes entice students to peek into Room 20 and find out what's cooking.

Students under their new teacher, Mrs. Jenny Smith, cooked entire meals and then proceeded to taste their preparations. Since there is more to being a housewife than just cooking, students also learn about family relationships, child care, and home furnishings. Being a careful buyer is no easy matter and pupils are taught consumer education which includes knowing what to buy and when to buy it.

Future do-it-yourselfers receive basic training in the Industrial Arts departments under the guidance of Mr. Donald Steward and Mr. William Schafer. The shop students work on and are graded on the projects they do each semester.

Mars Wolford watches as Mr. Schafer checks his latest blueprint for drafting.

These "busy bees," Karen Carper, Nancy Warrick, Jeri Snider, and Donna Emerick, are making clothes, not honey in home economics class.

Manual Training increases skill at home,

Waiting for the hike, these junior girls prepare for the next play in their game of flag football.

Developing strength and stamina is the job of the Physical Education classes under the direction of Miss LeNore Lewis, Mr. Ward Smith, Mr. Richard Capin, and Mr. William Schafer. When weather permits, gym classes play soccer, speed ball, flag football, and other outdoor sports. But as days grow colder, these classes turn to indoor games, and the boys move to the big gym. Basketball, volleyball, and dancing fill the time until the outdoors beckons once again. At this time softball fever takes hold of all to close another school year.

Students of GHS can now receive some fundamental training of the automobile by signing up for a semester course in Driver's Education. Classes are divided into two groups, one group each semester, with three students driving each six-weeks period. The students drive four days out of the week and have class on the fifth day. In these classes they study parts of the car and learn the essential skills of driving.

Mr. Pearson shows some of his Driver Training pupils, Dale McLeland, Larry Lovette, and Phillip Sweeney, how to check the oil.

Dale McLeland leans out the window of the Driver Education car to make sure the way is clear before he enters traffic.

at work, and at play.

Tickling the keys while her students add their vocal contribution, Miss Reba Stemen and her chorus classes do their part in Garrett's arts department.

Stressing the finer things of life, the art departments of GHS offer to the students a rounded education. Such classes as band, chorus, and art are available to the student who seeks to attain a diversified curriculum. Band and chorus allow the student to express himself musically while art allows a different kind of appreciation. Mr. Joel Plum teaches his art classes the finer points of color, design, and interpretation. On the lighter side such things as travel posters, paper mache masks, plaster sculptures and soap figures add fun and enjoyment.

The Arts stress the beauty around us.

Art students, Don Tarlton, Larry Wiley, and Faith Hathaway, work with paste and newspaper to create several unique masks which made their home in Room 22 during the year.

Keeping instruments in good condition is part of the job which band members do. Here David Frey makes use of Mr. Cole's desk to clean and oil his cornet.

Much progress made under Superintendent.

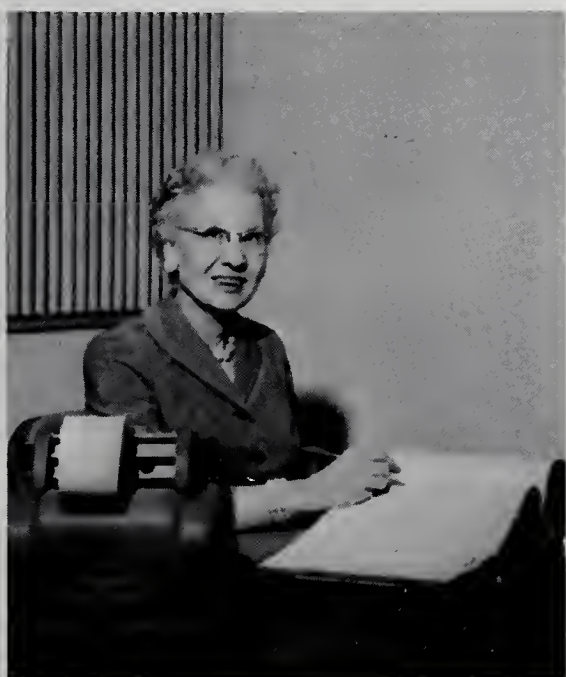

Mr. Cale Hudson, Superintendent

Progressing under a new administration headed by Mr. Cale Hudson, the Garrett School System has made many improvements. Adult education has been greatly encouraged with the introduction of night classes. The testing and guidance departments have also been expanded and improved.

Our school is included in a study group headed by a faculty member from Ball State Teachers College. This group is evaluating the school system and setting up goals for improvement.

As the years progress students will be able to look forward to a steady improvement in our school system.

Marjorie Nell, Accountant

Superintendent Hudson discusses some school business with members of the school board--Eugene Yarde, Emory Heitz, Arthur Hall, George Wade, and Raymond Burtch.

MR. BEN SIMPSON, PRINCIPAL

ELAINE KIZER, SECRETARY

The Administration and Faculty train

Starting the year with a new administration, GHS has been subject to many changes. Mr. Ben Simpson took over the job of principal, and Mr. Lynn Bollinger became the new assistant principal.

The school building has been improved by the addition of a new roof over the northern half of it. An improvement that students appreciated on cold days was the retubing of the heating system.

Changes inside the school were made also. English teachers have only four classes a day. The school now has both a full-time and a part-time counselor. Great changes have been made in the science and math departments as new teachers and equipment were added. The library has been improved by the addition of a new circulating Science Library.

We Participate in Clubs

Y-Teens

Y-Teen officers for the year were: Vicki Sithen, President; Karen Wade, vice-president; Marcia Gingrich, secretary; Doris Miller, treasurer.

Another Y-Club at the G.H.S. is the Y-Teens. These gals find in their goals reason to work hard at their many projects. Under the guidance of Mrs. Mary Mellott and Mrs. Doris Menges, this Y group has made corsages at Christmas, conducts a coat check at basketball games and has other various charitable groups for community betterment.

Programs aren't neglected either, as many guest speakers find time to come and inform the girls on numerous hobbies and jobs.

Pat Pfeiffer, song leader, Dotty Secrest, program chairman, and Sherrill Terry, devotional chairman, plan for the next meeting of the Y-Teens.

Female shutter bugs, Meg Williams, Sally Wetoskey, and Diane Miller learn the art of capturing on film once-in-a-life-time scenes.

Hi-Y

Hi-Y officers for the year were: John Flora, president; Joe Zern, vice-president; Doug Grueder, secretary; Jerry Smith, treasurer.

"To create and maintain throughout the school and community high standards of Christian character." This is the motto of the Hi-Y, and this idea was ably carried out under the responsible leadership of president, John Flora; sponsors, Mr. George Pearson and Mr. Donald Steward; and Rev. Charles Secrest, religious advisor.

Putting this idea into motion, the club sponsored a record hop in the fall to raise money. A profit of over $150 was realized. Also the annual semi-formal held in cooperation with the Y-Teens was a resounding success. Interlude In Autumn was the theme and decorations were carried out in this idea. Leaves, corn stalks, pumpkins, and gourds were the main attraction. Music was provided by the New Haven Orchestra.

Emcee Benny Ricketts crowns the royalty in the persons of Vicki Sithen and Jerry Smith at Interlude In Autumn.

After seeing several filmstrips on teenage problems, Chuck McNall leads the discussion for Hi-Y members.

JR. HI-Y OFFICERS:
Tom Funk, president; Doug
Aplin, chaplain; Dan
Haffner, treasurer; Mike
Thomas, vice-president;
Joe Mahnesmith, secretary.

Junior Hi-Y

Jr. Hi-Y conducts their meetings in Room 12, every Monday activity period.

A kid-brother to the Hi-Y, and a first cousin to the other Y groups sums up the relations of the Jr. Hi-Y. Using the same motto as the Hi-Y, the Jr. Hi-Yers follow in the footsteps of their older brothers, and prepare for the junior and senior years when they will enter that club.

With Mr. John Flora and Mr. Robert Bratton lending a helping hand, this club has strived to meet its aim of community betterment.

The main event of the year was the semi-formal held in connection with Blue Triangle. With a Mardi Gras theme, these two clubs joined hands, and gave their members a wonderful evening on Jan. 21, 1961.

BLUE TRIANGLE OFFICERS: Jenny Kelham, vice-president; Judy Johoski, president; Anita Hoke, secretary; Ruby Cook, treasurer.

Blue Triangle

The Blue Triangle, a freshman and sophomore girls' organization, maintains a busy schedule throughout the year. Panel discussions are held during the year with the Jr. Hi-Y. During these discussions, teen-age problems are the main subject.

Also in cooperation with the Jr. Hi-Y, is the annual semi-formal. This year the dance was held on January 21.

Displaying their wares, Miss Eldridge and Ruby Cook prepare the orders of Christmas cards and wrappings.

Blue Triangle members vote on a motion during their regular Monday meeting.

Latin Club

Roger Stroman puts the finishing touches on his Roman tunic before the Latin Club meeting.

LATIN CLUB OFFICERS: Randy Oliver, treasurer; Judi Johoski, vice president; Kathy Slater, secretary; Joe Rowe, president; Miss Ruby Etter, advisor.

A new specie of club member has emerged at GHS. He is attached to the Latin Club, just about the most active organization around. Just organized this year, the club has a majority of first and second year Latin students in it. They have bi-monthly meetings, and all members wear their Roman tunics to these.

At Christmas time, the club sponsored "Toys for Tots," gathering old toys to be distributed to needy children. They also held a record hop to earn money for their organization.

Sam Miller leads the Latin procession to the cookies, Cokes, and other goodies at the Roman Valentine Party.

Miss Smith helps four of her "younger" pupils understand the complicated ideas involved in their kindergarten class.

F. T. A.

A new arrival at GHS this year is the Future Teachers of America. This group is composed of juniors and seniors, and is under the guiding hand of Mr. Richard Smith.

The aim of the club is to acquaint high school students with the teaching profession. Regular meetings are held every Thursday evening in Room 1. Here members read and discuss various articles on teaching. During the second semester, senior members were assigned classes in the Ober Building. The students would visit their class for at least one hour a day and observe teaching techniques. As they gained knowledge and experience, the student teachers helped in class instruction.

Future scientists of GHS meet every two weeks under the guidance of Mr. Jack Bateman and Mr. William Linder. Commonly known as the Science Club, this organization has toured factories, had guest speakers, conducted experiments, and sponsored record hops.

The main project of this group was the Science Fair, which they sponsor every year. This competition is held in the spring, and ribbons are given to the various winners.

Operators Club

Operators Club, under the guidance of Mr. Paul Bateman, teaches students the do's and don'ts of operating the school's visual aids machines. These members learn how to operate cameras, projectors, tape recorders, and other devices. Members then operate the machines for teachers requesting their services.

This year the club had many money-raising projects and social events. The members have sold candy, garden seeds, fire extinguishers, and sponsored several record hops. They have participated in State F.F.A. activities, and area activities.

Band

Garrett's bustling bandsmen provided their audiences with many tunes and shows as the year progressed. Entertaining the fans at all home football and basketball games plus marching at the Auburn Fair, the Halloween parade, and other community projects, the band added color and gaiety to all.

Our musical organization participated in the contest held in the spring and again gave GHS a reason to boast. Various band members took part in the solo and ensemble contest held in February and the majorettes participated in the twirling contest.

The members raised money for new uniforms by selling candy to the students and community. Over $300 was collected during this campaign.

Chorus students presented their annual Thanksgiving concert under the direction of Miss Reba Stemen.

Chorus

Vocal knowledge and interest is added to our school year by Miss Reba Stemen, and her chorus classes.

These groups presented varied and interesting programs to the students and community at various times during the year.

BOYS' QUARTET: Charles McNall, Joe Velpel, Joe Zern, Don Funk.

Practicing the duet they will sing at contest, Mary Jean Zumbaugh, Esther Warstler, and Miss Stemen go over the music "one more time."

Chorus Ensembles

TEENETTES: Marcia Gingrich, Joyce Conrad, Pat Pfeiffer, Meg Williams, Donna Dee Buckles, Vicki Sithen, Adele Miller, Jeri Snider, Susie Smith.

SENIOR GIRLS' ENSEMBLE: Susan Hovarter, Mary Heffelfinger, Grace Strobel, Joan Arrants, Mary Bishop, Miriam Harter, Sally Wetoskey, Alice Andrews, Dianna Bherns.

SOPHOMORE GIRLS' ENSEMBLE: Sandra Sithen, Janice Shafer, Carolyn Refner, Carol LaRue, Kathy Slater, June Harding, Carol Bowers, Arlene Carper, Wava Maggert.

When all is said and done, the pep squad appears to have more said than done. The squad's real nature is caught here as this noisy bunch of girls has fun as it does more to cheer our team on than any other organization.

Pep Squad

Seated in block formation, 99 strong, the Pep Squad leads the crowd in support of our basketball team. Presenting an imposing sight in their blue and white pep shirts, the squad made various designs by their seating arrangement. A snowman was the design at Christmas time. Also a large G was formed at several games.

Tourney time saw the girls in their class skirts. Designs and pictures decorated these colorful additions at the sectional and portrayed the enthusiasm of the female fans for the team.

No other words are necessary as a fan's enthusiasm is captured in this character study of Susie Smith.

GAA officers were: Helen Hall, treasurer; Sandra Gaff, president; Marcia Gingrich, secretary.

G. A. A.

Losing a little of their femininity, the fair females at G.H.S. participate in GAA. Girls play basketball in the fall and then switch to volleyball in January. Although to the average male observer the rules appear quite different than their game, the girls have just as much fun and excitement.

At the end of the year a potluck is organized and various awards are given. The winning teams in basketball and volleyball are given certificates for their efforts. Also the girls who score the most points receive certificates.

What they lack in height, they gain in will. GAA girls boost Adele Miller to new heights in order to retrieve the ball so the game can continue.

Things were looking up at GAA when this picture was snapped. Carol Gaff has a hard time refereeing as two GAA members go up for a jump ball.

The "big wheels" of the Maroon and Blue staff get together to admire one of their papers. They are Margaret Williams, co-editor; Verneda Fields, business manager; Joseph Griffin, photographer; Susan Smith, co-editor; Mr. Kenneth Richardson, advisor; and David Blair, advertising manager.

Susan Hovarter does her part by collecting money from Larry Owens, who is purchasing a book from the Book Fair.

Maroon and Blue Streamliner

The Maroon and Blue Streamliner presented a bold new face to students in their first issue that came out the first full day of school. The new nameplate, banner headline reading "Summer's Over," and half page pictures of the typical student trying to get up early on the first day were the features of that first issue.

General changes in the paper included a section of news briefs on the front page for announcements and small items of interest. Editorials that "said something" were also included. To raise money, the paper sponsored a Book Fair during National Book Week.

The Maroon and Blue was a bi-weekly paper and students could expect to have it delivered every other Thursday in home room. There were special issues for the first day, Christmas, basketball season sectional toumey, and graduation.

Feature editor, Karen Wade, shows Richard Krus, sports editor, some of the interesting stories she has received from her reporters. Beside and behind them are: Virginia Leech, assistant feature editor; Rebecca Steward, Connie Kolbe, Daniel Haffner, reporters; Gary Snider, circulation editor; and Marcia Tharpe, reporter.

Aeolian business staff members are swamped with responsibilities and customers when the annual "school picture" season rolls around.

Two record hops, scheduled to increase the senior class treasury, added more activities to the job of the Aeolian staff this year. The staff made use of this extra money by purchasing a new camera and flash attachment and adding new features to the book itself. Extra endsheets and spot color were added for the first time. The design on the cover is the same as the crest on all junior class rings.

Mr. Kenneth Richardson was the advisor this year and the book had co-editors instead of the customary editor-in-chief. The co-editors attended a two week course of instruction at Indiana University during the summer to learn just how a yearbook is put together.

In January, the co-editors and Mr. Richardson took a trip to the American Yearbook Company in Hannibal, Missouri to see just how this yearbook was printed.

Taking time out from their hectic schedule to pose for this picture are Donna Dee Buckles, co-editor; Joseph Griffin, photographer; David Casey, co-editor; and Larry Lung, business manager.

Student Council

Changing the names of students on the honor roll is only a part of the council member's job. Here Joyce Conrad and Randy Davis put up the names of new honor roll members.

This year's Student Council under the leadership of president Mars Wolford and sponsor Mr. Stackhouse has accomplished much to benefit the school, teachers, and students. Money-making projects such as the Magazine Drive and the "Council Capers" variety show provided funds to buy additional conveniences around the school. As a result of the Council's efforts, pencil and paper machines have been installed in the office. An electric football scoreboard has replaced the old hand-scored wooden one. A new track record board similar to the honor roll board was another of the donations made by the Council.

Football Season brings thrills

Winding up the year with three wins, three losses and two ties, Garrett had a season which contained more excitement than the record shows. Almost every game was close and provided the fans with more than the usual thrills. Starting off with two ties, Garrett got on the winning track by defeating Bluffton 19-0. Winning their second game in a row, the Railroaders defeated Elmhurst by the same score of 19-0. In the next three games, Garrett was on the smaller end of the tally when Central Catholic, Concordia, and Angola downed them.

Climaxing the whole season, Garrett defeated arch rival Auburn 13-0 much to the delight of all Garrett fans. The players seemed to have endless endurance as they practically ran over the Devils. Although a hard played game, there were few penalties.

Gals that give us pep!

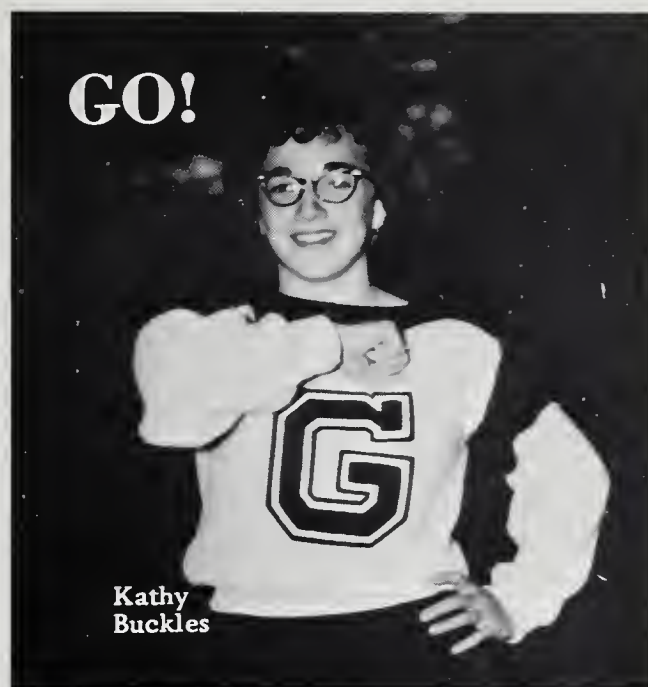

Varsity cheerleaders Ginny Leech, Kathy Buckles, and Donna Musser; and reserve cheerleaders Marcia Tharpe, Marilee Hughes, and Wava Maggert prepare for basketball season by practicing the school song.

School spirit and good sportsmanship were kept high by the enthusiasm of the Railroader's varsity cheerleaders, Kathy Buckles, Ginny Leech, and Donna Musser. During the course of the year many skits were presented at pep sessions in the auditorium.

The reserve cheerleaders, Wava Maggert, Marilee Hughes, and Marcia Tharpe added pep and steam to the drive of the Handcars. They were a big help to the varsity cheerleaders and both sets worked closely together during basketball season.

Captains Mike Kock and Bill Seigel along with Coach Ward Smith, display the rewards of the Sectional championship.

A better team finally met the Railroaders, and Garrett was thus eliminated from Hoosier Hysteria. The Railroaders coped the Churubusco sectional by defeating Angola 61-43. Garrett then advanced to the Regionals held in Fort Wayne. The Railroaders met Berne in their first game. Berne outscored our netters 68-58. Berne then went on to defeat South Side and take the Regional championship.

Tourney Champs.

Another fine season was climaxed by the sectional basketball championship. The first ten teams that the mighty Railroaders met fell their victims. Highlighted by defeating Goshen and Central Catholic, Garrett extended their remarkable home court winning record to 50 before New Haven was finally able to derail the train of victory. Losing to Bluffton, Avilla, and Concordia ended the season with 16 wins and 4 losses. Garrett's trainmen also won the Kendallville Holiday Tournament and finished second in the NEIAC conference.

Next year's season looks to be just as prosperous as this one. Juniors Doug Grueder, Tom Steinmetz, and Joe Zern gained the necessary experience to spark the '61-'62 season to even greater heights.

Garrett hit the entertainment world when the New Haven game was broadcast on WKJG radio by Hilliard Gates. This game, however, ended Garrett's winning streak on its home floor at 50 games.

Intramural

The whistle blows, the ball is in the air, and another evening of entertainment is started in intramurals.

Under the watchful eyes of Mr. Pearson, the captains choose their teams in preparation for the first game.

Intramural basketball, under the direction of Mr. George Pearson, kept a busy schedule this year. The boys who played in this sport met every Monday and Tuesday night from 8:00 pm until 10:00 pm at the big gym. This differed from previous years when the teams would meet in the mornings. The boys divided up into different teams at each game and they played several different teams each night.

Golf

Garrett's men of the greens ran into tough luck last year, finishing the season with two wins, one tie, and nine losses. The team ranked fourth in the conference though, and tenth in the sectional. The team has the necessary experience this year, with three returning members. With these old hands and some new help, the 1961 season holds a promise of a better record.

Greater strides bring new records.

Flying cinders marked another winning season of coach Capin's thinlyclads, as they ran off with the NEIAC crown. Garrett was defeated only once during the entire season.

Nimble Tom Burtch set two new records of 20.7 seconds in the low hurdles and 15.4 seconds in the high hurdles. Another school record was set when Carson Culler skillfully cleared the pole vault at 11 feet, 6 inches.

"Just a little bit more." Joe Zerns strains as he hands off to Tom Steinmetz on the last leg of the mile relay.

Flying through the air with the greatest of ease, Mike Kock successfully completes his bid in the high jump.

Class Sweaters and the Sophomore

Bob Culler watches on as Sharon Graham, Sharon James, Sandra James, and June Harding order their sweaters under the watchful eye of Miss Harter.

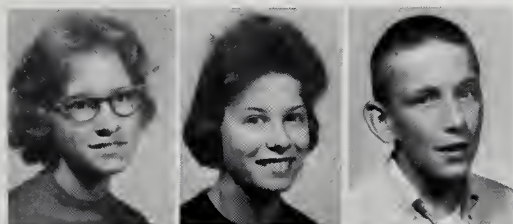

Mr. Simpson sorts through the stacks of sweaters to find the right ones for David Gradeless, Dan Haffner, and Helen Hall.

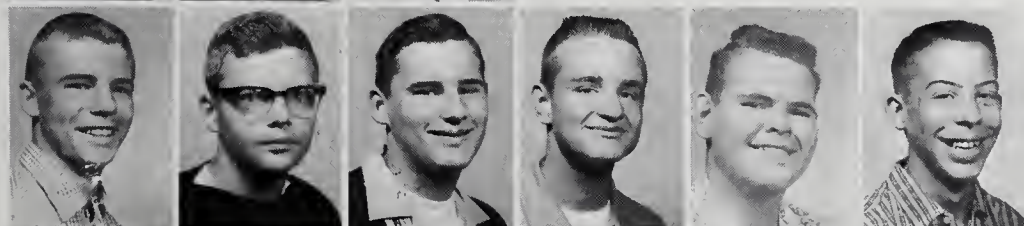

Explaining the pros and cons of class sweaters to Judith Johoski, Paula Livergood, and Janos Ratrie, Bill Kobiela expounds upon his vast knowledge on the subject.

AROUND THESE HALLS . . .

We Grow Up

Losing those extra pounds while gaining a few extra muscles, eighth graders are well on their way to a good physical education.

Nancy James happily quizzes Vic Hunter on his knowledge of science in Mr. Miller's class.

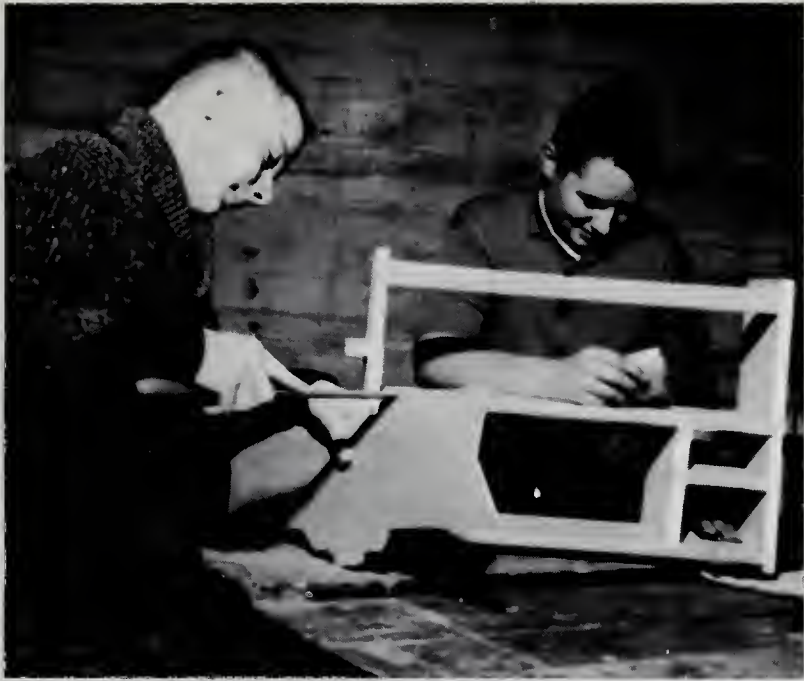

In the good ole winter time seems to be an appropriate title for this picture as a couple of fellows make good use of the newly-fallen snow.

Junior High

Jr. High transportation comes in many variations such as feet and bikes. Until the time when they get cars, the bike racks will probably be full.

Parents often wonder what their sons and daughters do at school. These two boys are putting the finishing touches on their homeward bound shop projects.

Looks Up . . .

This class is either taking the lunch count or there's more volunteers than most teachers hope for. Any senior can tell you it's youthful ignorance that makes kids put up their hands when a teacher asks a question.

Although some people have the silly idea that soap is to wash with, Mr. Plum's art classes will inform you differently. Every one in jr. high art classes knows that soap is made to carve on.

"This is how you do it. See, sew simple." Maybe a play on words here, but there's little play in Mrs. Smith's homemaking class.

Jr. High football coached by Mr. Robert Harman.

And Strives for Recognition

Running into a streak of bad luck, the eighth grade basketball team lost its first eight games. However, the scores do not tell all and plenty of action was involved in all. The seventh grade had a better record as they won seven of their first eight. Good coaching by Mr. Robert Harman, and teamwork were the winning combinations.

Eighth grade cheerleaders: Dawn Fleet, Connie Leeper, Janice Casey.

Seventh grade cheerleaders: Maxine Gravit, Cindy Lewis, Mari Lynn Neukom.

Rick Lewis drives in for another point in the defeat of Butler.

Junior High Band

To the whistle of the majorette and the cadence of the drums, the melodic marchers of the Jr. Hi Band march on to the field. These magic musicians appeared at three pre-game football shows and at the Final Parade of the DeKalb County Fair. Basketball games also saw the appearance of these mighty midgets as they serenaded the fans at half time.

Ending the year with a spring concert, the band gave their interpretations with a potpourri of selections.
